

The Thinking Pets Research Program is Looking for Participants!

Would your dog like to play fun cognitive games and get lots of yummy treats in the interest of science?

NC State University College of Veterinary Medicine Thinking Pets Program is now enrolling healthy dogs and their owners for a new research study exploring dog and human factors that may influence dog behavior.

Take our interest survey to find out if your dog qualifies:

PARTICIPATION INCLUDES:

- Two total visits to the NC State Veterinary College
 - A short 45-minute or less Meet & Greet appointment
 - If eligible, a single day study visit in which dogs can be dropped off for their day at the university!
- Dogs will participate in multiple learning games
- Owners will be asked to fill out questionnaires about their dog and participate in an interactive behavior test at pick up

DOGS WILL RECEIVE A FREE DOG TOY, BANDANA AND PUPPY REPORT CARD FOR THEIR PARTICIPATION!

For more information please visit:

<https://cvm.ncsu.edu/paws-and-perception-how-human-and-dog-factors-shape-behavior/>